Annual International Forum - AIF

Since 2007 with the introduction of the Annual International Forum this is also true for the international perspective. With the AIF an international (non-German speaking) audience is addressed to share their experiences in crime prevention.

We believe that while the world is growing closer research as well as experience should be disseminated within a broad professional framework.

Therefore we ask international experts from all areas of crime prevention to introduce, share and discuss their ideas, goals, outcomes, projects and speeches with other experts and to experience the German modality of crime prevention.

Beccaria Programms since 2003

The CRIME PREVENTION COUNCIL OF LOWER SAXONY (CPC) was founded in 1995 with the objective of reducing crime and improving the population's feeling of safety and security (www.lpr.niedersachsen.de).

The BECCARIA Programme is part of the CPC's activities. So far, there have been three consecutive projects, which were implemented within the framework of the European Union's AGIS- and ISEC-Programmes together with ten European partner organizations:

1. Quality management in crime prevention (2003-2005)
2. Qualification in crime prevention (2005-2007)
3. Knowledge transfer in crime prevention (2008-2011).

The BECCARIA Standards for ensuring quality in crime prevention projects have been translated so far into 16 languages (www.beccaria-standards.net).

The CPC's BECCARIA qualification programme has been offered annually since 2008 (www.beccaria.de) and has been presented inter alia at the XIIth United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice in Brazil in April 2010. Apart from this in-service training, the first Master's programme in crime prevention at a German university will start in fall 2011. It has also been developed in the context of the BECCARIA-Programme (www.master-kriminalpraevention.de).

The objective of the English-speaking BECCARIA Internet-Portal is to facilitate the access to globally available knowledge on crime prevention (www.beccariaportal.org).

Moving knowledge into action

4th BECCARIA PROJECT 2012 to 2014

Strategies for bridging the gap between criminological research and prevention practice

Knowledge in criminology and crime prevention is often comparable to a „Black Hole“: Issues and data from the field are taken in, but nothing is coming back. It is primarily theoretical knowledge and rarely application oriented. Theoretical knowledge and knowledge from everyday practice are barely connected. All too often, criminological knowledge stops at recommendations for further action, without being processed for practitioners with a view to solutions or action.

Therefore, scientific results rarely obtain relevance for practical work. Therefore, the objectives of the fourth Beccaria project are: To address criminological knowledge and its perspectives for application more directly to decision-makers and practitioners, to close the gap between „knowledge-producers“ and „knowledge-users“, to create new opportunities for a low threshold, internet-based professional exchange and to increase professionalization in crime prevention by offering short-term advanced training (Summer Academy) and academic education at the Master's level.

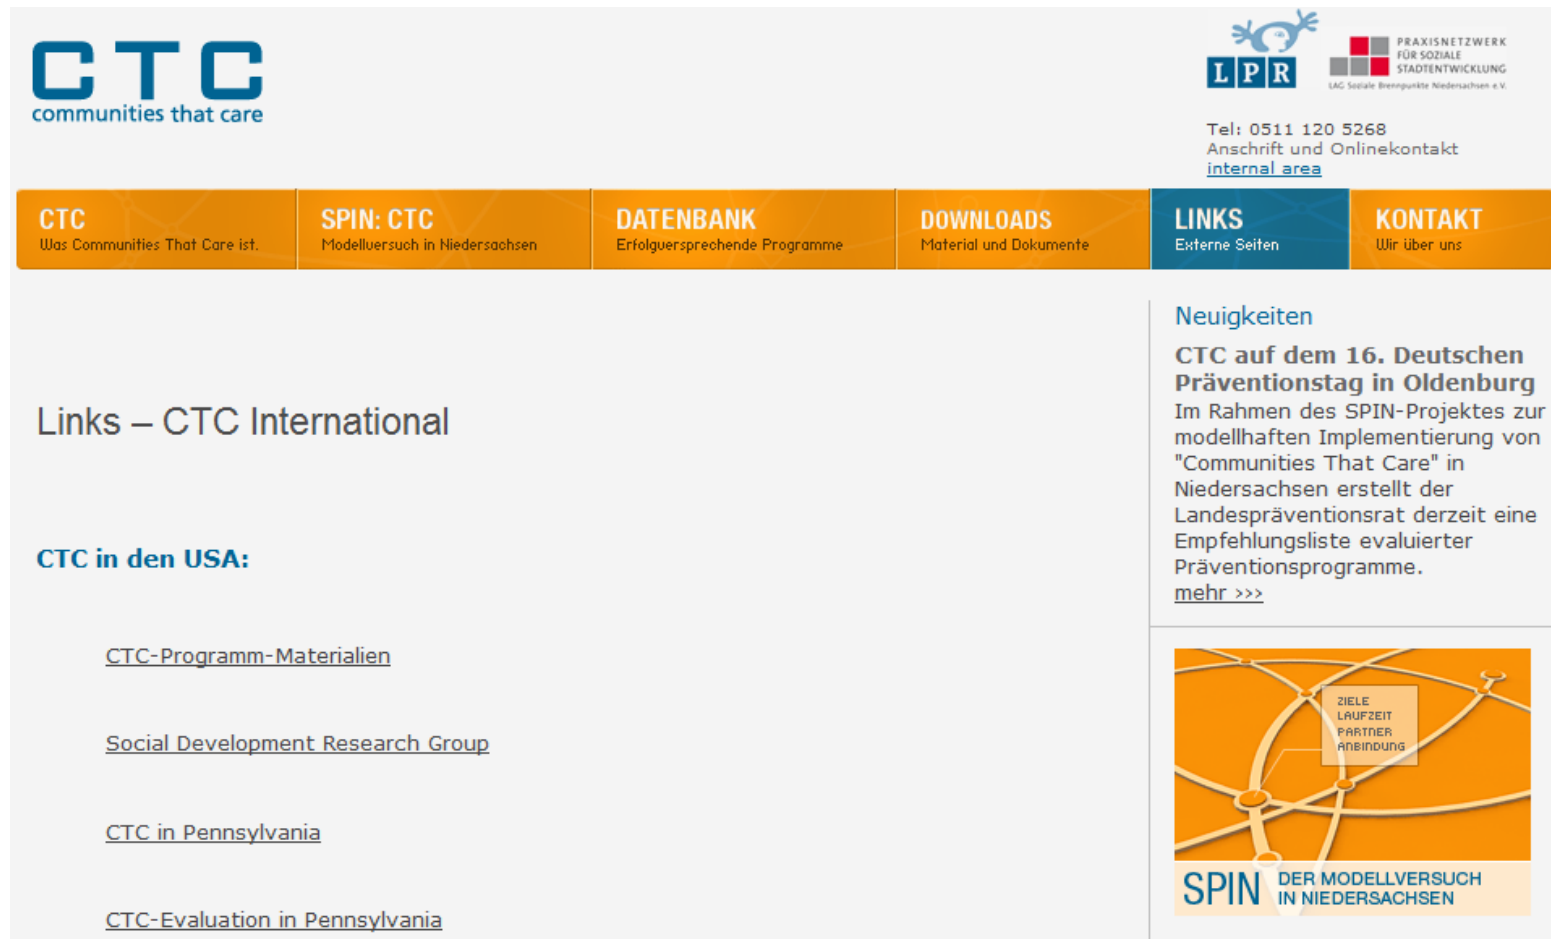

The project's results are disseminated via the English-speaking Beccaria Portal. This Internet-Portal forms the core of the project and is to become a central interface of European crime prevention. Its wider acceptance is sought by the involvement of several national, European and international networks and partner organizations.
